Iris Shilka

4134 "Poor man's Orchid" IRIS SHILKA

Many years ago as a crowded train puffed its way across the barren plains of Siberia, Prof. Hansen, an American, was electrified by patches of what appeared to be Orchids blooming in that desolate region, near the town of Shilka. As the train stopped, Prof. Hansen left it to satisfy his curiosity. When he made an inspection of the plants he found them to be of the Iris family, but their form and color so closely resembled the Orchid that he thought of the descriptive phrase, "Poor Man's Orchid." He secured several of the plants and brought them home with him. Several years of development showed them to be perfectly adapted to our climate. They were placed on the market under the name of Iris Shilka, after the Siberian town where they were first found.
